

Hats off: Rose Crane with one of her millinery designs. Photo: LARA LADYMAN

Race ahead with stylish millinery

TAMMIN millinery Gwendoline Grace and Gatsby Hats will be visiting Kalgoorlie-Boulder for the Boulder Cup with a carload of stylish hats and head pieces.

Gwendoline Grace and Gatsby Hats milliner Rose Crane will be participating in the art2go pop-up art shop project at the old post office building on Hannan Street.

The inaugural art2go 2010 Pop-Up Art shop will display an array of visual art, wearable art, art from wood or basket weaving, photography, prints and hand-crafted giftware during September's Race Round.

Art2go specialises in work by Goldfields artists and designers who would not otherwise have the opportunity to display their work to the public.

Ms Crane has been putting together her spring range for months in preparation for the annual festivities.

She said she was very excited to be part of the art2go project even if it was for just one day.

"I have previously attended the Kalgoorlie Race Round and I am looking forward to returning for the Boulder Cup," she said.

"Each Gwendoline Grace hat is handmade and original – you won't find someone else at the race track wearing your hat."

Ms Crane has also recently launched her website www.ggghats.com.au and she encouraged ladies looking for a hat to bring along their outfit colours and shoes to find the perfect matching piece.

She said she would be bringing a number of new spring pieces not available on her website yet for those looking for the extra unique piece.

LETICIA QUINTANA

leticia.quintana@kalminer.com.au